5301 Limited Edition 2000pcs

1959 Morris Mini Minor Saloon
Old English White

621 AOK was the first Mini to be manufactured. The production register shows that Chassis No. MA254-101 was a De Luxe Morris assembled over Easter weekend in 1959. Because full production had not started, all components were not yet available from stock which explains why it did not have the correct wheels and other De Luxe features such as chromed trim on the surround of the windscreen and rear window, or on the wheel arches and sills. The model authentically replicates the original 1959 Morris-style seats and interior, "flying-pan" air filter, and chassis with no drain-holes and large floorpans.

Limited Edition 1800pcs 5302

1960 Austin Se7en De Luxe
Tartan Red

The key external features of this model are the chromed inserts in the surrounds of the windscreen and window, and chromed trim to the rear side windows, sills and wheel arches. It also has the original 1960 "snoop-nosed" air filter, the later chassis with smaller floorpans and drain holes, and the original Austin De Luxe interior, seats and wheel trims.

5303 Limited Edition 999pcs

1961 Austin Se7en Cooper
Smoke Grey/ Old English White

In 1961, legendary British race driver John Cooper re-tooled the Classic Mini to create a higher performance, racing version. He gave it a more powerful engine, higher and closer gear ratios, better brakes, wider tyres, a colour-contrasting roof to stand out in the crowd, and the Mini Cooper was born. A few years later, Cooper boosted his version of the Classic mini even more, creating the purest racing car, the Mini Cooper S, in 1963.

As times went on, the Mini Cooper became a racing phenomenon, winning 3 times at Monte Carlo (1964, 1965 and 1967) and taking home first place in numerous others races on the international rally circuit.

1960 Morris Mini Traveller
Clipper Blue

From 1960 the Mini range included a estate car version built on a longer wheelbase which it shared with the Mini Van and Pick-up. The estate came badged as either the Austin Seven Countryman or the Morris Mini Minor Traveller, both versions were identical apart from the badges. The longer wheelbase enabled the Mini estate versions to offer a reasonable load carrying area, which benefited from having a fold flat rear bench seat. Early Countryman / Travellers came with a wood exterior frame at the rear, similar to the Morris Minor Traveller, although the wood was not structural in any way. The estate Mini's lasted until the 80's and were also available in Clubman fronted versions.

Morris Mini Van
Royal Mail

The first 50 Morris Mini vans were delivered to the Post Office in 1960 and 1963. However, because they were much lower than the Morris Minor van, getting in and out was much more difficult which made them unpopular with postmen. So, it was only after production of the Morris Minor had ended in 1971 that large quantities of Mini vans were bought. All Royal Mail vans were fitted with a locking bar on the rear door together with an extra lock, for improved security.
